A Solid Citizen Sees the Princess and Prince As the Royal Procession Tours Edmonton

To those beings, People, I am known as the Edmonton Sun or the Community Publications building.

Both rather nice names, too, for from them I conjure pictures of the pulsing life of the city and the many cosy hamlets and villages peopled with friends. I'm not one of your cold, imposing skyscraper varieties, but prefer to cuddle comfortably with my neighbors along Whyte Avenue. No, we're not tall, we buildings along the avenue. but that doesn't stop us from keeping up appearances. Not so long ago I had my face done a new beige stucco and mock stone effect. It's very effective with my bright, red trimmed windows.

I'm not a very old building, and with my love of imagining, it's rather a handicap so that's why today is so special. You see, this is Saturday, October 27 and in a short while Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip are going to drive right past me.

I've been dreaming about this for weeks. People say the Princess is much more lovely in person than in her pictures and that the Duke is much more handsome.

Those members of the fourth estate who bustle about in the confines of my walls have the radio going and we're listening to accounts of the tour of the royal couple. About all those announcers can say is "Listen to the crowd," and, "Isn't she lovely!" Ah, there is a lady commentator. Now we'll find out what they are wearing.

The Princess has chosen a raspberry suit with a straight cut skirt and a tailored, nipped in jacket for her appearance in Edmonton. It's black velvet trim is a complement to the becoming velvet cloche, adorned by a matching bow at the side, which fits snugly over her light brown curls.

Over her shoulders she wears a shorty of rich, dark mink with luxuriously full, cuffed sleeves and completing her costume are low, black walking shoes which tie in tiny bows, and matching gloves. The Duke is wearing his naval uniform with its gold braid.

My, I'm glad the radio people put a woman on. Those men have no idea of clothes.

Crowds are starting to gather in front of me but they can't get above my false front so I'll be able to see quite well. They chose the area in front of me for school children and their parents. It's just about time for the royal procession, and now there is a solid triple row of youngsters and their parents before me. Every one seems to have flags to wave. They are rather amusing, too, those flags. It seems the smaller the youngster the bigger the flag.

Oh, oh, there is a poor father holding his child who is clutching a very large flag. It keeps blowing across his face and he can't see a thing. I hope the breeze doesn't whisk it across his face when the Princess goes by.

There's the throb of some motorcycles. Someone just yelled "They are coming"—No, it's three, white-clad members of the Alberta Motor Association. I guess they are checking to see that the road is clear.

While we wait, it's drizzling and some of the children are getting restless while others are practising waving their flags. There are diversions from these activities as periodically a car goes by filled with policemen of all services.

There come four more motorcycles. These are ridden by members of the City Police Force in their official looking, navy blue serge uniforms, and they are grinning sheepishly as they ride by. On my left, the sounds of cheering are beginning to well around the corner mingled with the faint bark and throb of motor-cycles and the hum of automobile motors.

And there they are!

Simultaneously with the cheers and excited flag waving, two outriders of the RCMP motor-cycle squad round the corner, followed by the royal limousine. The car is a black convertible style with a plexi-glass top which is glistening with rain drops. Clustered about it are six more RCMP outriders, their short navy topcoats covering their red jackets.

The royal car is moving rapidly toward me. The Princess is on my side and I'm sure she's looking right at me. Now she turns her head slowly and speaks to the Prince. He turns quickly and answers her so that as they pass me I get a good view of his face, too. Both of them look exactly as they do in their photographs.

They're gone, followed closely by a long procession of cars holding what the radio people call "dignitaries."

Now all the people are dashing to try to beat the procession to the next turn and see them again. In a matter of minutes I'm completely deserted. My, that throng just melted. One minute there were hundreds lining both sides of the avenue before me and the next, not a single soul.

Goodness, I was so thrilled and excited as they passed, I do believe I forgot to flutter my "Welcome" sign.

A hush has fallen over the avenue and it's getting quite dark. All the neon signs are winking cheerily and it's so quiet, I think I'll start my remembering and dreaming now. I may even practice telling fairy tales. Now, how will I begin.

"Once upon a time, a beautiful Princess and her handsome consort passed this way . . ."

Celebrities Hunting In Grassland

GRASSLAND — Many hunting parties are in the district, and most of them are obtaining their bag limits. Making their headquarters at the home of Sandy White are Mr. John Southam, of the famous newspaper chain; Mr. Allen H. Bill, managing editor of the Calgary Herald; Mr. William Howland, who represents "Time" magazine at Atlanta, Georgia; and Mr. Dudley Batchelor, city treasurer of Calgary.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kritze left by bus to attend the funeral in Edmonton of Mrs. Kritze's brother, Mr. Joseph Spallin, who died from injuries received in a car accident in the city.

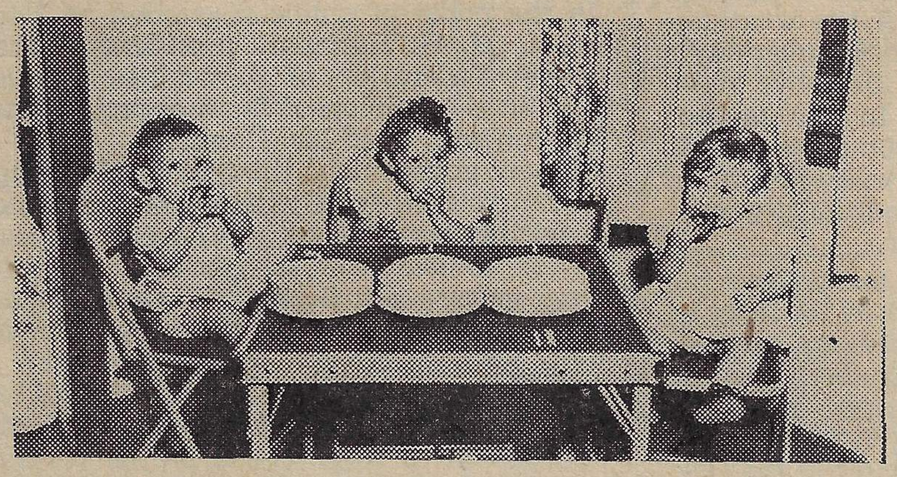

Miss Enid Blaikie, of the Polio Research Foundation, is conducting a survey of the district around Prosperity. Miss Blaikie is staying with Miss Ries, with whom she worked three years ago on the Stettler Health Unit.

It is with regret that we learn that Miss Ries will soon be leaving us, to take up duties elsewhere. However, she has consented to stay for another month, until a successor can be found.

GUEST SPEAKER FROM EDMONTON AT LIONS CLUB SOCIAL EVENING

LAC LA BICHE—Mr. W. W. Buxton of Edmonton was the guest speaker when the members of the Lac la Biche Lions Club and their ladies held a very successful get-together in the Community Hall. The speaker stressed the importance of the work of the Lions club and congratulated the Lac la Biche organization on their fine progress. Mr. Buxton was accompanied by his wife.

The social evening was spent in dancing to the music of the Lac la Biche orchestra. At midnight, a number of tables arranged in the form of a horseshoe, were set up and a substantial lunch was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Tomlinson of Fort Saskatchewan and several couples from Boyle were welcomed by Mr. Hall in an address to the Lions and their wives. He also expressed deep regret on behalf of the club at the departure of Constable Allen and his wife, who have been transferred to Two Hills. The couple were presented an automatic electric toaster.

Mr. Lobay, M.L.A., addressed the club and expressed his interest in the organization.

After lunch the tables were moved and dancing continued until the small hours of the morning.

Poppy Day Sale Nov. 10

LAC LA BICHE—Poppies will be sold at Lac la Biche this year as in former years and again the W.I. will be in charge of the sales in cooperation with the local branch of the Canadian Legion. The sale of poppies to commemorate those who fell in Flanders Fields is in vogue all over Canada.

These flowers are made by disabled veterans and the profits from such sales go to help give these men a decent living and to augment their pensions as well as to aid local charities. The money from such sales is not used in the general funds of the individual branches of the Legion. Therefore, in buying a poppy, you do not only keep fresh the memories of those who gave their lives for their country, but you also help make easier the lot of their comrades-in-arms who survived the combat and now spend their lives maimed by their service to their country.

Lac la Biche Boys Lucky

We are sorry to hear that Kenneth Proctor, while driving his father's car, was hit by a three ton truck. The car turned over but fortunately neither Kenneth nor the two boys with him were hurt.

Mr. Albert Jones, an employee of the C. W. Carry Ltd., steel fabricators, Edmonton, visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Jones, and friends for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Jones made a special business trip to Edmonton to get feed for the mink farmers. They got meat shipped from Edmonton, and a car load of fish is on the way from the coast. They obtained a promise that the lake here will be open two weeks longer for the fur farmers.

Vern Jone, of Victoria, B.C., visited friends here for a few days. He was on the Crusader when it took Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip from Vancouver to Victoria.

Mrs. Tatum spent the week-end in Edmonton.

Exeter Returns To Home Lake

LAC LA BICHE — There is a familiar sight again on the shores of Lac la Biche these days. The Exeter, training vessel of the local sea cadets arrived home on Saturday, Oct. 27. It is now on its trailer close to the lake waiting until next spring when it will be repainted and checked over to again serve the local mariners.

Not many weeks ago this vessel was moored in the heart of London, England, opposite the site of the Festival of Britain, but the only mark of distinction is the oily water line picked up amongst the liners and tugs in Liverpool harbor. The paint is a little scratched and minor repairs have to be made.

The Exeter has made a name for herself but in the words of Mr. H. Carran, a faithful friend of the sea cadet corps, "she looks a bit tired," and she really does.

The boat was moved without any mishap and the job was done by Willie Hamilton and his assistants.

Remembrance Day Holiday Monday

Lt.-Gov. J. J. Bowlen yesterday signed a proclamation making Monday, Nov. 12, a statutory holiday for Alberta residents.

Mr. Bowlen signed the proclamation about the time Ottawa authorities were announcing there was no provision for such a step in the Remembrance Day Act. Remembrance Day, Nov. 11, falls on a Sunday this year, and Alberta decided to make the following day a holiday.

Edmonton Responded Well

The day was cold, damp and a light rain was falling. Premier Manning spoke truly when he said the weather was unusual. It would have been more usual if the weather man had given us either a warm October day, Indian Summer style, or else 10 above zero with no rain but more snow. In spite of the weather, the people of Edmonton came out of their warm, dry homes to welcome their Royal Highnesses in the traditionally enthusiastic but reserved manner.

Mayor Parsons, beset by a fast-approaching Civic election could be excused for forgetting to speak into the microphone at the Legislative steps. Princess Elizabeth read a speech in faultless English, right into the speaker—a speech so well written that it could have come from a typewriter in the Department of Economic Affairs right here in Edmonton. Premier Manning, throughout the ceremonies calm, collected and apparently master of the situation, was obviously unnerved after he had escorted Her Royal Highness to the Cadillac. A slight delay in the departure of the big plastic topped car left him for a few moments on the horns of a dilemma. Whether to wait until the Royal car had pulled away or go directly to their own car with Mrs. Manning was the Premier's problem. There are times when the mightiest man among us is made to feel like a bashful teen-ager on his first date.

At Colonel Mewburn Hospital Elizabeth and Philip did chat with a few folks on the common level and this always makes for good feelings when Royalty meets and talks with the people. They attended the football game where even the Esks responded with a smashing victory over the Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Always too confident to do much boasting, the people of Edmonton did well by the Royal Visitors. The next time they come here we hope they'll be able to stay long enough to know us.

Wanted: More Royalty

Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh have been and gone. Edmonton was in the mood for celebration — and "a good time was had by all." For many it meant hours of dreary, motionless standing in the cold rain, for but a fleeting look at the Royal couple. To more fortunate citizens it meant actual participation in the ceremonies, the appearances and the banquet with the honoured visitors.

Somehow or other, the Royal family seems very remote from our Canadian way of life. Idealizing, as it does, a united loyalty to our British-born democratic manner of government, we should have more Royal appearances in Canada. In the days when it took six weeks to cross the Atlantic and a trip overland 3,000 miles was unthinkable the system of having a member of the Royal family visit Canada once in a lifetime was undoubtedly the most practical way to deal with Royalty.

Now, however, the King of Canada is only a few hours away at all times by air from our shores and appearances of the Royal family should be as frequent as once a year. The Duke of Windsor is no longer acceptable as a representative of the Crown to Canada, but what about his other brother, the Duke of Gloucester?

If we are going to preserve our allegiance to the British Crown, even only in name, we must have the co-operation of members of the Royal family who are willing and able to come here and spend some time in this country.

Reclaiming Australian Desert

While Alberta is busy establishing irrigation districts for good, productive land that lacks only a dependable year-in, year-out rainfall, the government of another member of the Commonwealth is tackling somewhat similar problems.

A project to reclaim half a million acres of desert land is now underway in South Australia. Unlike, most deserts, this area is not short of moisture but the soil is deficient in certain essential plant foods. By adding small quantities of the trace elements copper and zinc the area can be made quite productive. As the land is fertilized it is seeded down to grasses and converted into individual farms for production of sheep or dairy cattle.

Price Control

Tremendous pressure is being brought upon the Canadian government to enact price control laws to prevent further rises in the cost of living. While the government has been loath to take such action, cabinet ministers have hinted that public opinion may force them to do so.

In the midst of public discussion on this question, H. H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, made very plain the opinion of farm organizations on the subject. Said Mr. Hannam.

"If any government thought of clamping price controls on food without at the same time putting controls on profits and wages, it is going to hear from the farmers. Organized agriculture will fight. The government will have a bigger row on its hands than it now has with the clamor for price control."

Mr. Hannam pointed out that food prices today are not high in relation to other prices, or in relation to wage rates, or the profits being made by industry. Most food in terms of work required to purchase it, is cheaper than it has ever been. This fact is borne out by a comparison of average earnings in industry and average prices for staple food.

Others who can control their production and who set or help to establish their price or wage levels, said Mr. Hannam, have been more responsible for the high price structure of today than the farmer.

Speaking of the proposal that food be subsidized, Mr. Hannam said. "Why should subsidies on food be urged and not subsidies on other things, It is humilating for the farmer to be picked out as the only one who is not entitled to a fair exchange value for his product in the market place."

De-Centralizing Local Government

Considerable interest has been evoked by the recent removal of the Sturgeon School Division offices for the Morinville district from the City of Edmonton to Morinville. The Municipal District office was already located in Morinville, for the Municipal District of Morinville, but the neighboring Municipal District of Sturgeon has had and still have their offices on Jasper Avenue.

The largest settlement within the boundaries of the Sturgeon Municipal District is at Gibbons, and a number of residents and ratepayers feel that the Municipal District offices should be located there. Others would like to see the office re-located in North Edmonton.

All this indicates a trend away from centralization in the big city, but this undoubtedly poses a problem for staff members who by moving are obliged to either give up their city homes or drive many miles daily to and from the office 20 or more miles away from home.

At the rate Edmonton is growing, we may expect to see towns such as St. Albert, Morinville, Gibbons and Fort Saskatchewan become very close neighbors to the city by virtue of the latter's expanding boundaries due to ever-growing population. Perhaps within the life span of most of us Edmonton will absorb these communities. A population of 300,000 within ten years is not unlikely and if in twenty years Edmonton has half a million population we can count on these communities becoming much bigger, too, although by that time they'll be merely in the city suburbs.

Plan For Road Research

The thirty-second convention of the Good Roads Association of Canada is to be held in Toronto Nov. 1 and 3, and it is expected there will be 1,000 members present, all of whom are interested in the building of good roads in all the ten provinces of the dominion.

In the matter of good roads, of modern construction, most parts of Canada are far behind the times. There is need for wider consideration and assistance for road building in Alberta in the interest of agriculture and the growth of industry, as well as for the sake of defence in case of war. If ever the tide of war sweeps onto Canadian soil the means of rapid transportation of army personnel and equipment may mean the difference between defeat and victory.

Hon. G. E. Taylor is to be a delegate at the Good Roads convention and it is to be hoped he will take a constructive view of proposals to be broached for the establishment of a research institute for highway construction in Canada. Alberta needs more and better roads in order that the growing prosperity of the province may be better served.

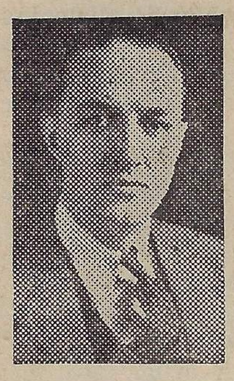

My Letter To Princess Elizabeth

By T. W. PUE

Dear Elizabeth:

You don't know me, but some day you may be Queen of England and someday I may be your Canadan Prime Minister. You have a good chance of being queen. I have a chance of being prime minister, but the odds are so against me that I never give it a second thought. If I were prime minister, though, I would like to talk to you as Disraeli is reported to have spoken to your great-great grandmother. When, in a huff, she reminded him "Sir, do not forget I am the Queen of England." He replied, "Madam, do not forget I am the people of England."

On Saturday you with your handsome husband were in the midst of a quarter-million residents of Northern Alberta. To thousands of children of all ages you were the fairy Princess who stepped into their midst for moments becau a few brief moments. Yes, they were only moments, because although you spent nine hours in Edmonton, hardly anyone got more than a passing glimpse of you.

T. W. PUE

I was one of the lucky ones who saw you step off the train at the CNR station. I hotfooted abreast—about ten paces away, with a group of reporters and photographers. Those men, like myself, were intent on getting actual photographs and word pictures that would convey to our people a picture of the future Queen mingling with the people, and yet retaining her royal dignity. You saw me standing—although you did not, of course, recognize me in any way at the legislative buildings. You and your husband stood but a foot from the group of reporters who carefully observed your every movement while in front of the legislative buildings.

I saw you as the big Cadillac pulled away, saw you through the plastic roof of your car. Some mud had gotten on the back of your dainty little right shoe and you were rubbing it off with your glove.

I saw this as the eyes and ears of the thousands of people who read our papers. I have to report I am one of the luckiest guys in the country. I was indeed privileged to get such a good view of Your Royal Highnesses. Truly, you were the Princess of Canada, and insofar as my newspaper readers are concerned, I represent the people of Canada.

A TIRING TRIP

When I saw you, I sensed that this was a tiring trip. There was no thrill left in it for you. You had made so many public appearances in the last few weeks we couldn't blame you for feeling tired but, Elizabeth, Edmonton was just beaming with excitement. To them it was your first appearance. And, frankly, I did not feel that either you or the Duke responded to that feeling.

I was sorry that in the few moments you had on the legislative steps, waiting for the rest of the official party to drive up, you and your husband did not make the rounds of the children who had been standing motionless a long, long time for you to arrive. The Duke did speak to one or two, and you did wave your hand to the crowd a few times—but you had the time to really meet a good number of young Canadians—and you missed the opportunity.

I had read an earlier report that in an Eastern hospital the Duke of Edinburgh had looked at an ex-serviceman who had lost both arms and both legs. One of you only LOOKED at him. Did it occur to you that you both should have walked up to that man, put your hand on the stump of one arm, and thanked him on behalf of all of us for the sacrifice he had made? I remembered how, years before, your Uncle David leaned over and kissed the misshapen face of a veteran who had given all but life for his country, with tears in his eyes, and I could weep at the opportunity you both had missed on this occasion.

Near the beginning of your present Canadian tour a young man displayed a great deal of courage and ingenuity and pushed himself right up to your Royal person and asked for your autograph. If, instead of saying "no", you had given him your signature and a short, kind word of reproof for his boldness, not a single Canadian would have found fault with you. We Canaidans are always happy when the underdog comes out on top. Protocol or no protocol.

I wish you had planned on spending a month in Alberta. I wish you had been here long enough to meet the people. No doubt you have learned a lot in your short lifetime, but you have not learned the greatest lesson of all—the lesson of meeting people. They are the most interesting subject in all the lesson books. But you don't learn it in books—you learn this by meeting people.

When you meet President Truman in Washington, you'll meet a man who epitomizes Greatness in the midst of the common man, the little man, the man of the street. I am sorry the Duke of Edinburgh did not "kick-off" for the players at Saturday night's football game. We would have loved him for it, even if the soles of his shoes did get a bit of mud on them. But when you see Harry Truman, just remember that he threw in the first ball for a recent baseball game and the Canadian and American people heartily approved.

For the rest of your Canadian tour, Elizabeth, how about a change of routine? If I were you, I'd absolutely insist on having dinner with a coal miner's family in Cape Breton. I'd be royally indignant if I couldn't visit a potato farmer on Prince Edward Island. And if it meant getting back to England a few days later I'd see to it that for the rest of my Canadian tour I met the common people of Canada. Many of our people are new Canadians, not steeped as I have been in traditional loyalty to the British crown. You've been sent here to sell yourself and the High Purposes to which God has called you to the people of Canada. Elizabeth, be a good saleswoman.

Because I write you this letter, Elizabeth, please not not take offense. If your battery of secretaries lets you read it. There are scores of other newspaper writers who would like to write what I have written, but they don't dare because they are working for someone else who could fire them. I am working for myself because I am publisher of my own papers.

Some Canadians—perhaps some writers—will criticize me. But this is a case where "your best friend won't tell you" so even if I'm not your best friend I hope you'll consider me one of your best Canadian friends. Because, in my own blundering way I've tried to tell you what one Canadian honestly thinks about your tour of this country we love.

And to prove my sincerity I am closing this letter in exactly the same way I would if writing to any other good friend that deserves my honest opinion and highest respects.

With every good wish, I am,
Sincerly yours,
Bill Pue.

REPLY TO RILEY

Dear Sir—So the poor tired businessman thinks farmers lead the Life of Riley! Apparently he has never been outside the city limits. I am not a farmer, but I drive through eight miles of farming country every morning on my way to work, and I can assure that silly letter writer that the farmers are all up and about their chores at that time.

Edmonton, Calgary Fastest Growing Cities, Edmonton Population 172,112

OTTAWA, Oct. 26. — (BUP) — The oil-booming cities of Edmonton and Calgary led major centres in rate of growth during the last 10 years.

Edmonton's population increased by 69 percent, while in Calgary it jumped 42 percent, between 1941 and this year, the Bureau of Statistics reported.

Publishing preliminary counts for Montreal, Quebec, Ottawa, Winnipeg, Edmonton, Calgary and Vancouver, the bureau said that in all of the cities except the national capital, there were greater gains in the metropolitan population than for the city proper. Annexations of suburban regions in Ottawa reversed the trend.

Edmonton's population was up to 158,709 from 92,817, while Calgary's went to 126,631 from 88,904.

The Edmonton metropolitan area counted a population of 172,112 as against 97,842, and in Calgary comparative figures were 136,719 and 93,021.

Montreal passed the million mark, reaching 1,002,703 in the city proper compared with 903,007 in 1941. Metropolitan Montreal totalled 1,370,044 persons or 20 percent more than the 1,145,282 of ten years ago.

Vancouver's city population increased nearly 24 percent to 340,272 from 375,353 and the metropolitan area population almost 39 percent to 524,339 compared with 337,447.

Winnipeg had an increase of five percent to 233,617 from 221,960 within city boundaries and a 17 percent increase to 350,924 from 299,937 in its greater area.

97 Days On Raft 'Just Experiment'

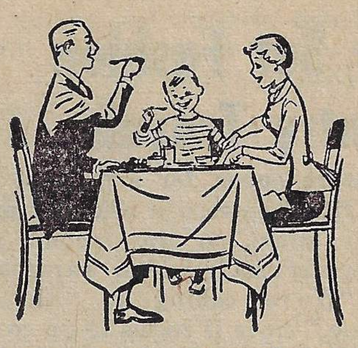

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 22—(BUP)—The ramshackle raft Lethargia and its crew of two unmarried girls and two bachelors drifted into New Orleans yesterday to end an 1,800 mile "sociological experiment."

Harbor police reported Lethargia, a 10-by-20 foot platform built on oil drums, entered the city limits about 1 p.m.

Police sent out a launch to escort it to the foot of Canal St., where the crew got an official welcome.

Mary Ellin McCready, age 24, is the Lethargia's skipper. The other girl is Geraldine Garcia of Boston and the bachelors are Milton Borden of New Bedford, Mass., and Don Brown, a University of Michigan student.

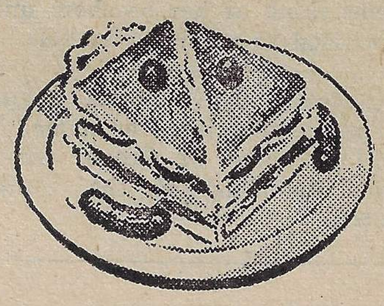

They left New Kensington, Penn., 97 days ago to test the reactions of persons confined at close quarters. Statements a stopping points along the river indicated it was a trying experiment.

Elizabeth and Philip Set Fashion Styles On Cross-Country Travels

The colors Edinburgh green and Elizabeth blue are catching on in Canadian fashion circles, even though Princess Elizabeth's spelial tour wardrobe isn't likely to start any fashion trends.

Most of the clothes the Princess brought with her already had been previewed as she passed through Edmonton back across the continent, and it's the colors she chose that are showing up in the shop windows.

FEATURES HATS

One Victoria, B.C., dress shop featured a window of Edinburgh green hats when the Princess visited there Most women found the blue green shade flattering. the shop owner commented.

The slate blue chosen by the future queen for a tailored suit, a fitted patterned silk coat and a silk dress, is the second most popular shade in her wardrobe.

"We're calling it "Elizabeth blue," since it seems to go so well with her eyes and her coloring," a local department store buyer said.

Early reports on the specially designed wardrobe forecast a shade called Elizabeth rose. Only the rosey brown shade, already seen in a satin cocktail dress and a velvet coat, has just been described as light brown since Princess Elizabeth arrived.

The Princess doesn't regard herself as a fashion setter, and has been reported mildly annoyed at all the attention given her clothes. She chose a comfortable rose tweed suit characteristic of British tailoring for her three-day Vancouver Island holday, and apparently thoroughly enjoyed wearing the same suit every day.

Of the 18 complete outfits created by Norman Hartnell and Hardy Aimes for her trip, Princess Elizabeth has most often worn her full-skirted slate blue silk coat, her moss green velveteen fitted coat and a dark red coat trimmed wth black velveteen.

Unless it is very cold, she prefers the velvet or cloth coats to one of the three daytime fur coats she brought with her.

If anybody is influenced by her taste in clothes it will be short women who want to look taller. The one color costumes and fitted coats add an illusion of height which the five foot three inch Princess needs.

"It's a shame she's so short, isn't it, or else we could see her better," commented one woman who was standing on tiptoe to catch a glimpse of the Princess reviewing an honor guard. "You'd never think of her as short until you tried to see her like this."

Cleveland, Nova Scotia, a lumbering community, was named in 1891 in honor of Grover Cleveland, President of the United States.

This Chap Had Full Stomach As Doctor Removes Parcel Of Toothpicks

Canada claims the best toothpick swallower in the world and that includes Wyandotte, Oklahoma.

The Misericordia Hospital in Edmonton reported that a surgeon last week removed five toothpicks, bound together by a rubber band, from the intestine of a 52-year-old man.

The toothpicks were found in the large bowel from which the appendix originates. The doctor who made the operation refused to divulge his name or the name of the patient.

The whole thing came as a big surprise to the patient who is now making an "uneventful" recovery. He says he never uses toothpicks. But he recalls having been to a big thanksgiving party this month and consumed plenty of turkey and stuffing.

When he went to hospital it was though he was suffering from appendicitis.

The Edmonton doctor said he recently read reports from Wyandotte, Oklahoma, where one toothpick had been recomoved from the stomach of a local patient.

"We are claiming a world record for toothpick swallowers," he quipped.

Downed Flyers Rescued After Being Lost 4 Days

Two men who spent four days and nights shivering in sub-zero weather beside their downed plane in Northeastern Alberta were evacuated Saturday.

The aircraft, missing five days, was found by an Indian Saturday with its two occupants uninjured, although suffering from the cold weather.

A Royal Canadian Air Force mercy plane dropped rations, blankets and a stove at Gypsy Lake, 35 miles east of McMurray, Alta., where the single-engine Stinson aircraft of the McMurray Air Services made an emergency landing. The men were able to get warm while evacuation plans were being made.

The plane disappeared last Tuesday on a 200-mile flight northeast from McMurray to Goldfields, Sask. Aboard were pilot W. J. L. Van Allen, believed from Oshawa, Ont., and McMurray bank employee Dave Evans.

In Army But Draws Baby Bonus

The Canadian Army has a soldier still drawing the baby bonus on top of his regular pay.

The father of one of three men who escaped from the Prince of Wales Armouries in Edmonton told authorities his boy is only 15.

The lad, who went AWOL from Camp Shilo, Man., last August, gave himself up three days ago, then sneaked away with two companions yesterday.

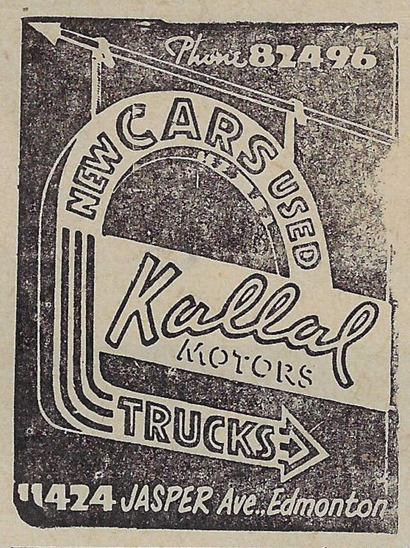

A quick check by the army disclosed the youth had offered proof of age with a baptismal certificate he had borrowed from a friend. The Army said the boy will be discharged just as soon as he is apprehended.

Federal Gov't Silent on How to Pay $450 Million Cost of Pension Scheme

By JAMES R. NELSON

OTTAWA, Oct. 26. — (BUP) — The nation's new universal old age pension scheme, which will pay $40 per month to everyone over 70, appeared due for a rough ride in parliament today on points of detail.

All opposition parties supported in principle the government proposal which is embodied in legislation introduced by Health Minister Paul Martin in the Commons. The government has promised it will go into effect next January.

Opposition groups, however, disagreed among themselves and with the government on details of the scheme.

CCF WANTS MORE

The 13-man CCF group advocates pensions of at least $50 a month to keep up with the mounting cost of living.

Conservatives tried to steal the parliamentary spotlight by demanding a halt to all other Commons business for a full-dress debate on what acting leader Gordon Graydon (PC-Peel) called "uncertainty, confusion and distress" caused by the government's regulations governing applications for the pension. The motion was ruled out of order and Martin said flatly there was no confusion but that which the Conservatives were creating.

How the government proposes to foot the $450,000,000 annual bill for the new pensions program remained a deep-dark, government secret.

The scheme grew out of a Senate-Commons committee on old age security which 18 months ago recommended universal pensions of $40 over 70, and graduated pensions up to $40 monthly, based on need, for persons between 65 and 70. Parliament passed legislation in June covering the 65-70 age group.

The committee made no concrete recommendation on how the program should be financed. It suggested, however, that the pensions be paid out of a special fund of contributions from employers, employees and general tax revenues.

Machinery already exists for contributions from a wide selection—but not all—employees in the unemployment insurance fund. The number of people contributing to the scheme would be much larger than those paying federal income taxes.

The Lighter Side

Pottery Psychiatrist

A G.I. asking for a loan was asked what his business was and gave the startling answer that he was a psychiatrist in a pottery factory. Further questioning drew out the information that he took care of the cracked pots.

Terrific Speed

A jet plane pilot had the job of carrying a Very Important Person to New York City. After a short time in the air he turned to the big shot: "We missed New York sir. We'll have to circle back."

"How could you possibly miss a huge city like New York?" blustered the VIP.

The pilot confessed: "I blinked."

Well Acquainted

A young teacher substituted for a friend who was taking a week's honeymoon. A month later at a party someone started to introduce the groom to her.

"Oh," he answered brightly, "I know Miss Royal very well indeed. She substituted for my wife on our honeymoon."

That Explains Everything

When Jones met his old friend, Smith, whom he hadn't seen in six months, he was shocked by his altered appearance. His face looked haggard, his eyes held a glossy stare, and the way his clothes draped his frame spoke eloquently of a considerable weight loss.

"Good heavens, man!" Jones exclaimed. "Have you been ill?"

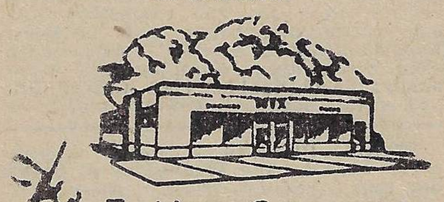

"No," Smith answered, wearily; "but my wife is on a reducing diet."

Truman Plans Set Up Embassy In Vatican

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—(BUP)—President Truman may set up an "interim embassy" in the Vatican until Congress acts on his controversial nomination of Gen. Mark W. Clark to be America's first ambassador to the Holy See, informed sources said yesterday.

Mr. Truman would like to rush Clark to Rome while Congress is vacationing, but such action may be stymied by an 1870 law barring military men on active duty from civilian government posts.

Clark told Mr. Truman before the surprise nomination was announced last Saturday that he would not retire from the army to accept the ambassadorship, and the administratoin's top legal experts doubt they can find a loophole in the 80-year-old law.

Clark, the army's ground force commander, could be sent to the Vatican as Mr. Truman's "personal representative," if a recess appointment is impossible, but the best opinion is that the appointment probably will be held up until Congress returns in January.

Informed sources said it may be possible to establish an "interim embassy" with a career diplomat serving as charge d-affaires pending arrival of an ambassador.

They said there were no apparent legal objections to such a move, but noted that other obstacles would enter the picture, the most important of which would be financing the action. The general accounting office, these sources said, would have to decide whether government funds could be spent for the mission.

Economists estimate it takes from $25,000 to $30,000 to start a farm project big enough to support a family in most of the country's regions.

NEW DUTY FOR COP

CALGARY, Oct. 24.—(BUP)—Along with their other duties, police here have become fashion experts.

The station sergeant of the Calgary police force received a call last night from a woman who wanted to know what she should wear to a formal dance.

"A dress," suggested the sergeant.

"No," said the woman, "what should I wear on my head."

The sergeant came up with the answer, "a flower or corsage, but no hat."

"Gee, thanks," said the woman.

Armistice Day Observances Nov. 12

LAC LA BICHE—This year, as November 11 falls on a Sunday, the annual Remembrance Day and Armistice celebrations will be held on Monday, Nov. 12, in Lac la Biche. This day is organized by the Canadian Legion, BESL, but all returned men and women whether members of the Legion or not, are extended a cordial invitation to be present.

The parade falls in as usual at the Memorial hall at 10:30 a.m. and the procession at the appointed time proceeds to the War Memorial and to services at both the Anglican and Roman Catholic Churches.

At noon there will be a dinner for the veterans at the Legion club and a dance in the Memorial hall in the evening.

Bootleg Whiskey Kills 31 Persons

ATLANTA, Oct. 24.—(BUP)—A fat ex-convict, accused of selling the poison whiskey that killed 31 persons was charged with murder last night.

Solicitor Paul Webb of Fulton County changed the manslaughter charge against John Richard (Fat) Hardie to one of murder and said he was seeking "one other man" as an accomplice.

The murder charge was placed after officers and revenue agents checked the story of Hardie, a triple-chinned, 360-pounder, that he had bought 99 gallons of lethal booze from a moonshiner in the Georgia hills.

Revenue agents indicated they had called off their search in Rabun County, where Hardie said he bought the whiskey. Solicitor Webb said the search for the second man was being confined to Atlanta.

Hardie, whose record fills three pages in the FBI files and who has been convicted of bootlegging and manslaughter, was first charged with involuntary manslaughter. He was arrested at his bed in Piedmont hospital where he was confined with auto accident injuries.

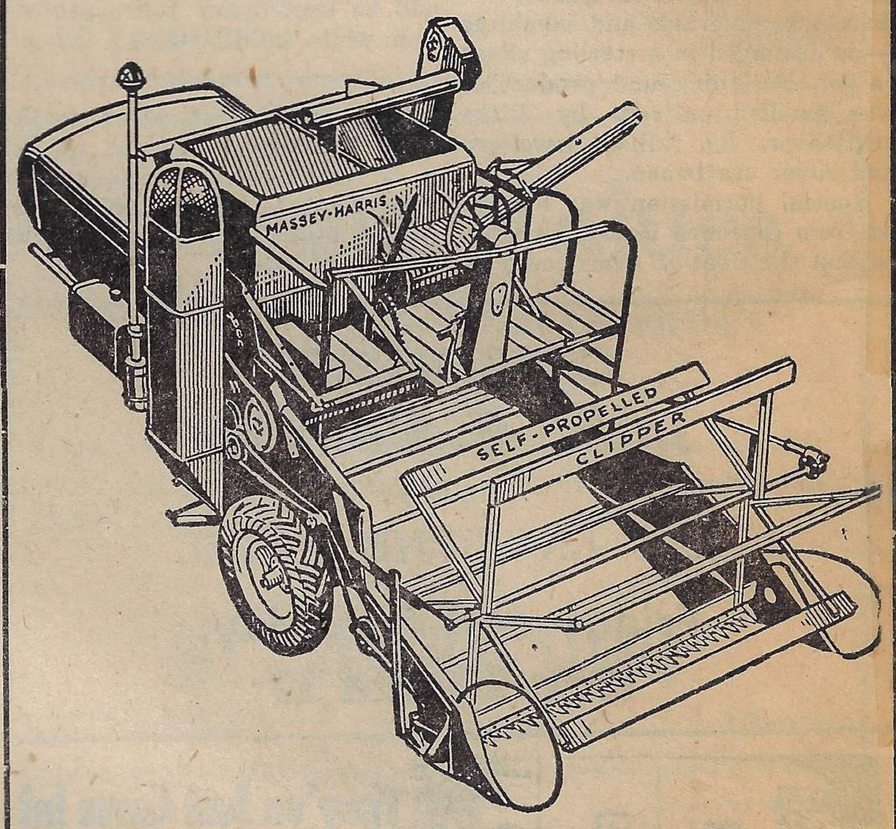

Norwood exported 4,000 tons of butter in 1950.

HARVEST FOR LORD

GATTMAN, Miss. — (BUP)— Members of the Depriest Freewill Baptist church near here say they have gone into "partnership with the Lord." They harvested two bales of cotton from land they planted next to the church. The pastor, Hansell Hollie, said money from the sale of "the Lord's cotton" will go into the church treasury.

$130,000 Jewelry Piece Features Elizabeth's Personal Coat-of-Arms

Mr. L. L. Nelson, manager of Henry Birks & Sons, announced Tuesday that a beautiful display piece, valued at $130,000 and created to commemorate the Royal Visit, will be displayed in Edmonton.

This unique masterpiece features Princess Elizabeth's personal Coat-of-Arms in precious metals of Canadian origin; pierced and engraved solid gold, with platinum applique. The Coat-of-Arms, decorated with five rosettes of gems of unsurpassed quality — diamonds, emeralds and sapphires — is displayed in a sterling silver casket. Designing and production was handled entirely by Birks craftshops, by skilled jewellery and silver craftsmen.

Special permission was obtained from Clarence House, London, so that the Coat-of Arms could be reproduced and shown to the Canadian public.

This display will be on view in Henry Birks & Sons Jasper Ave. window on Thursday and Friday, between 10 a.m. and 10 p.m. each day.

The Coat of-Arms will be flown to Edmonton Wednesday, and will be kept under police protection while in the city.

Cape Disappointment in southwest Washington was so named as a reminder of the failure of early English and Spanish navigators to discover the mouth of the Columbia River.

OTTAWA, Oct. 26. — (BUP) — Joseph V. Jacobson, 38, of Vermilion, Alta.. was named superintendent of education for the Northwest Territories by Resources Minister Robert Winters after a nation-wide civil service competition for the job.

During 1950 a total of $60,000,000 was paid out by Workmen's Compensation Boards in industrial accident cases.

THE NEW Beatty
SPACE SAVER
IRONER

IRONS EVERYTHING

Yes, it irons men's shirts — and kiddies' dresses, too, and curtains and curtain ruffles. It will press and pleat perfectly.

Just one simple motion to run it — just press the lever down. It locks in position and both your hands are free to guide the clothes. It is equipped, of course, with switch, signal light and thermostat. Plug the cord into any wall socket — no special wiring is needed.

IT IRONS — PRESSES — STEAMS

Compare this ironer with others costing twice as much. The roll of the Space Saver is bigger and longer — saves crimping on flat wear. The ironing shoe is wider and longer, with a much greater ironing surface. The heat is really efficient—1050 watts — and thermostat controlled. But look at the difference in price!
